Mr. Thurston and Prof. Coffman both made short but interesting talks.
Mrs. Scott had arranged a program, which was necessarily short, as the on the 8:45 train.

The members of the school board were present, also many of the pa-enjoyable evening, but regret that the time was so short.

Distress in the Stomach

There are many people who have a distress in the stomach after meals.
It is due to indigestion and easily remedied by taking one of Chamberlain's Tablets after meals. Mrs. Henry Padghan, Victor, N. Y., writes: "For some time I was troubled with headache and distress in my stomach after eating, also with constipation. About six months ago I began taking Chamberlain's Tablets. They regulated the action of my bowels and the headache and other annoyances ceased in a short time." Obtainable everywhere.

Hearing on Confiscated Property.

Durant, Okla., Nov. 22.—A hearing on the confiscation of a wagon and team taken several days ago near Caddo loaded with whiskey was held before County Judge Rappoloe, who held that the property was subject to confiscation under the law giving the officers power to confiscate when they caught a conveyance carrying whiskey. Two automobiles were captured, loaded with whiskey at the same time, and this case will come up in the near future.

The wagon case will be appealed.
The owners of the vehicles claim they did not know for what purpose their property was being used.

FOR ACID STOMACHS USE MAGNESIA

The almost universal use of magnesia by physicians and specialists in the treatment of stomach troubles, is due to the fact that it neutralizes the excessive acid and thus stops food fermentation—the direct cause of nearly all stomach trouble. Of the many forms of magnesia such as oxides, citrate, carbonate, sulphate, etc., the one now supplied in either powdered or tablet form and especially recommended for acid stomachs, is bisurated magnesia, a teaspoonful of which in a little warm water immediately after eating will instantly neutralize the excessive acid, stop fermentation, and thus ensure painless normal digestion. Be sure to get bisurated magnesia rather than any other magnesia, as this form is prepared especially for the treatment of acid stomachs. The five grain tablets are the most convenient for physicians and travelers to carry, and two tablets are equivalent to a teaspoonful of the powder. Take two of the tablets, (with or without water) or a teaspoonful of the powder in a quarter of a glass of water after each meal. Stomach sufferers and dyspeptics who follow this plan and avoid the use of pepsin, charcoal, soda mints, drugs and medicines, are astonished to find that the stomach, relieved of the irritating acid and gas, soon regains its normal tone, and can do its work alone without the doubtful aid of artificial digestants. Bomar Drug Co., T.

INCIDENTS IN THE LIFE OF PRES. M'KINLEY

TOLD AT CORNERSTONE LAYING OF MEMORIAL BY JAMES H.
HOYT, AN INTIMATE FRIEND OF THE MARTYRED PRESIDENT.

Niles, O., Nov. 29.—Two incidents, not generally known, were recited by James H. Hoyt, of Cleveland, who was an intimate friend of the martyred president, at the laying today of the cornerstone of the National McKinley Birthplace Memorial here.
Mr. Hoyt reviewed the great achievements of the McKinley administration and then, to illustrate the intensely human side of the president, he told the following stories of McKinley's career:

"At the time of the Boxer Rebellion, when the diplomatic representatives of other nations were in danger, and military forces were being sent by all the leading countries to suppress the rebellion and rescue their diplomatists, and our own troops were in transit under command of General Chaffee, McKinley was taking a needed rest at his home in Canton, O. The long distance telephone was situated between two windows running to the floor of the room. Under one of them, and projecting from the foundation of the house, was a faucet to which his gardener was in the habit of connecting a hose with which to water the lawn. One morning, the president was called to the long distance telephone by his two great secretaries, Hay and Root. A message had been received from the Czar of all the Russias and the Emperor of Germany, requesting that the president of the United States should place the American soldiers under the command of Count Waldersee, the German general, in order to insure harmony of action on the part of the allied armies. It was a momentous dispatch, and serious results might depend upon its proper and intelligent answer.

"There was some paving going on in the street opposite the house, and as the day was warm, the workmen became thirsty, so one of their number was sent for water. He naturally thought and thought only of going to the house of the president, as he was sure of considerate and generous treatment there. So while the chief executive of this nation was consulting with his secretaries concerning this important matter over the telephone, John walked up, hung his pail on the faucet and turned on the water. The water running into the pail made a great deal of noise and disturbed the president, the windows being open. He asked his secretaries to wait a moment, and then leaning forward and looking out of the window, said:

"John, that water running in the pail makes a very disturbing noise, and I am busy talking over the long distance telephone. Please turn it off for a few moments."

"All right, Major," replied John, and turning off the water, he filled his pail and lighted it, and then, sitting down with his back to the house, listened to the conversation which the president was carrying on.

"Here was the ruler of a hundred millions of people engaged in the transaction of most important and serious public business, and there was a common laborer, intruding himself into the transaction; but Mc-Kinley was not impatient, nor did he resent, as almost any other man would, this interference. He dictated to his secretaries over the telephone that famous and 'McKinley-esque' reply, consenting that the American troops should be placed under the command of the German general on the condition that this government at any time reserved the right to revoke the permission, provided the policy of the army so commanded ran in any way counter to the ideas of the United States.
An admirable reply, the wisdom of which was quickly approved by the public when they learned of it. Having dictated this important dispatch, the president hung up the receiver, but he did not forget John.

"John," he said, "I am through now, and you can turn on the water again."

"John did so, and then leaning on the window sill, said:

"Major, (because all the laboring men in Canton called him by that familiar title) Major, I hope you are going to settle that Chinese question all right, ain't you?"

"I hope so, John," said the great executive.

"Well, Major," replied John, "you don't need to be too darn yielding.

for all of us boys are behind you."
"Thank you, John," said the great president, and the incident was closed.

"And here is another story showing his wisdom, sympathy and infinite tact.

"At the close of the Spanish war, you will remember there was much criticism, most of it unjust, of the war department. Mr. Alger was secretary of war. The criticism grew so strong at last the president wisely appointed a commission to investigate and report. Just before Thanksgiving of that year, the governors of the different states, as well as the president of the United States, issued Thanksgiving proclamations.

The governor of one of the territories appointed by McKinley, in his proclamation, announced that one of the main reasons for Thanksgiving that year was that the president had at last been forced by public opinion to appoint a commission to investigate the war department, that its incompetence would at last be shown up, and that the rascals would be exposed and punished. This remarkably unwise and rambunctious proclamation was published in the Washington papers on the cabinet day preceding Thanksgiving. The members of the president's cabinet, who had read the papers before going to the cabinet meeting, were very much disturbed. They knew that the secretary of war, chafing as he was under the very unjust criticism of his faithful and earnest administration of the war department, would probably insist on one of two things: Either that this governor should be summarily removed, or that his resignation as secretary of war should be immediately accepted.

In the one case they feared that by such removal the people might think the president was intending to suppress or cover up the investigation; in the other case, that the people would get the notion that the secretary, fearing the outcome, had left his post under fire, and in either case the result would be unfortunate for the president and the administration. So they attended the cabinet meeting that day with feelings of foreboding.

"After the regular business of the cabinet had been transacted, the secretary of war, with a voice trembling with anger and emotion, said:
"Mr. President, one of two things must happen, sir. Either an appointee of yours must immediately have his official head taken off at the shoulders, or my resignation as your secretary of war must be accepted."

"Why, Mr. Secretary," said the President, "what is the occasion of this unusual demand?"

"The Secretary took a paper out of his pocket and handed to the president for perusal, this unfortunate proclamation. McKinley read it, and then, in that marvelously sympathetic voice of his, said:

"This is too bad. How could the governor be so unjust and thoughtless. But, Mr. Secretary, on reading over this proclamation I find he does not mention your name. Perhaps he does not mean you. Perhaps he means me. I am the commander-in-chief of the army of the United States. If there has been incompetence in the management of the war department, or any dishonesty, I am responsible to the people of the United States for it.
Perhaps the governor does not mean you, Mr. Secretary, but means me."

"All the more reason, then," replied Mr. Alger, "why his official head should come off."

"Well," said McKinley, "Mr. Secretary, you may leave this paper with me, and I will carefully examine this proclamation, and if, after reading it, I reach the conclusion that he means you, I will promptly remove him."

"Thank you, Mr. President," said the secretary. "That is all I could ask."

"But would you not like to know,"

Ends Dry, Hoarse or Painful Coughs Quickly

A Simple, Home-Made Remedy, Inexpensive but Unequalled

The prompt and positive results given by this pleasant tasting, home-made cough syrup has caused it to be used in more homes than any other remedy. It gives almost instant relief and will usually overcome the average cough in 24 hours.

Get 2 1/2 ounces Pinex (50 cents worth from any drug store, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. This makes a full pint—a family supply—of the most effective cough remedy at a cost of only 25 cents or less. You couldn't buy as much ready-made cough medicine for $2.50.
Easily prepared and never spoils. Full directions with Pinex.

The promptness, certainty and ease with which this Pinex Syrup overcomes a bad cough, chest or throat cold is truly remarkable. It quickly loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough and heals and soothes a painful cough in a hurry. With a persistent loose cough it stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the annoying coughing.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract rich in gualiacol and is famous the world over for its splendid effect in bronchitis, whooping cough, bronchial asthma and winter coughs.

To avoid disappointment in making this, ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex," and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., St. Wayne, Ind.

said McKinley softly, "What I propose to do if, after reading this proclamation, I reach the conclusion that the governor did not mean you, but means me?"

"Well," said McKinley, and "His words were shed softer Than leaves from the pine," and they fell on those present, —as snows on the brine, Which mingle their softness and quiet in one

With the shaggy unrest they float down upon."

"Well," said McKinley, "if, after careful examination, I find that in this ill-considered and unwise proclamation, he does not mean you, but means me, I am going to forgive him."

"Tears came into the secretary's eyes, and, reaching his hand forward, he said:

"Mr. President, please return that paper to me. This matter is closed forever and forgotten."
